Proposal Defense
Towards a Framework for DHT-Based Disributed Computing

Andrew Rosen

Georgia State University

July 15th, 5775 AM

GeorgiaState University

Table of Contents

1. Introduction
   - What I am doing
   - Distributed Computing and Challenges
   - What Are Distributed Hash Tables
2. Background
   - The Components and Terminology
3. Previous Work
4. Proposed Work

Objective

Our objective

Georgia State University

What is Distributed Computing

Our objective

Georgia State University

Challenges

Our objective

Georgia State University

Strengths of DHTs

Our objective

Georgia State University

Table of Contents

1. Introduction
   - What I am doing
   - Distributed Computing and Challenges
   - What Are Distributed Hash Tables
2. Background
   - The Components and Terminology
3. Previous Work
4. Proposed Work

Georgia State University

Table of Contents

1. Introduction
   - What I am doing
   - Distributed Computing and Challenges
   - What Are Distributed Hash Tables
2. Background
   - The Components and Terminology
3. Previous Work
4. Proposed Work

Georgia State University

Table of Contents

1. Introduction
   - What I am doing
   - Distributed Computing and Challenges
   - What Are Distributed Hash Tables
2. Background
   - The Components and Terminology
3. Previous Work
4. Proposed Work

Georgia State University